Geography

I already know:

- The equator is an imaginary line that divides the Earth into two parts.
- I know that the weather is different in different parts of the world.
- Weather and climate mean different things. Weather is rain, sun or snow and it changes every day. Climate is patterns of weather over longer periods of time.

Key Vocabulary:

|             |                                                                                 |
|-------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| culture     | the traditions and beliefs that a group of people practice in their daily lives |
| earthquake  | a sudden shaking of the earth's surface, sometimes causing great damage.        |
| hot springs | a natural source of water that has water warmer than body temperature           |
| Mount Fuji  | the highest mountain in Japan                                                   |
| volcano     | a mountain with a crater at the top through which molten lava can erupt         |

I will learn:

- Japan is in Asia. Its capital city is Tokyo. It would take 16 hours to fly there from the U.K.
- about what it is like to travel to Japan and some of the important places to visit.
- which animals are native to Japan and the habitats they live in.
